INTRODUCTION

Pursuant to the provisions contained in Articles 91.f and 126 of the Charter of the Organization of American States (OAS), the Inter-American Commission of Women (CIM) hereby presents its annual report to the Permanent Council for subsequent submission to the forty-first regular session of the General Assembly, with the observations and recommendations that it may deem appropriate.

This report presents a summary of the activities carried out by the CIM between March 2011 and February 2012. To harmonize the work of the CIM with its existing mandates, in particular that of the Inter-American Program on the Promotion of the Human Rights of Women and Gender Equity and Equality (IAP), the CIM formulated its Strategic Plan 2011-2016. This Plan, which was adopted by the CIM Executive Committee 2011-2012 during its First Regular Session (7-8 April 2011), seeks to strengthen CIM's core role as the hemispheric political forum for women's human rights and gender equality, as well as its coordination with the other organs and bodies of the OAS, international organizations, civil society and other key sectors.

During the period covered by this report, the CIM worked to promote the full political participation of women as an indispensable component of democratic governance, and to eliminate gender violence, both of which are fundamental for the exercise of human rights and public security. It continued to support the inclusion of the gender approach as a prerequisite of sustainable and inclusive human development, and strengthened the image of the OAS as an organization that is responsive to the demands of the women of the hemisphere.

In April 2011, the CIM held the First Hemispheric Forum on Women's Leadership for a Citizens' Democracy (4-6 April 2011, Washington, DC). This Forum brought together political leaders, government representatives, activists, academics and representatives of international organizations in order to analyze and debate the challenges faced by current democratic systems in guaranteeing women's human rights and the exercise of their full political citizenship. The Forum generated a Working Group on Women's Rights and Democracy, which has worked throughout 2011 to develop an analytical frame of reference for a citizens' democracy that effectively takes into account and responds to women's rights and demands. This framework will serve as a guide for the work of the CIM in the area of democracy over the years to come, and has initiated a new hemispheric debate on how democracies need to change in order to fully incorporate women as citizens.

In November 2011, the CIM celebrated the first-ever Inter-Sectoral Dialogue between the Ministries of Labour and the National Machineries for the Advancement of Women, which looked at some of the challenges that women still face in the world of work, some of the progress made in formulating and implementing gender-responsive labor policies, and made concrete recommendations for strengthen the work of both government sectors in promoting and protecting women's labor rights.

In November 2011 the CIM also held the Fourth Meeting of Ministers or of the Highest-Ranking Authorities responsible for the Advancement of Women in the Member States (REMIM IV, 1 November 2011, San Salvador). The objective of this meeting was to analyze and debate the main topics of discussion of the Sixth Summit of the Americas (12-14 April, 2012) from a perspective of women's rights and gender equality. Accordingly, the REMIM adopted a resolution (CIM/REMIM-IV/doc.6/11 Rev.1), which recommended that specific language be incorporated into the final outcome document of the Summit in order to ensure women's needs and demands were taken into account in the agreed conclusions of this high-level meeting. The REMIM resolution was communicated to the President of the Summit Implementation Review Group (SIRG), as well as to the national coordinators responsible for this meeting in each of the Member States.

Over the next year, the CIM will continue its work to fulfill the mandates entrusted to it and to strengthen its effectiveness by addressing the needs of women, so that the respect for human rights and gender equality become a reality throughout the Hemisphere.

María del Rocío García Gaytán
President 2011-2012
Inter-American Commission of Women

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

This report covers the activities carried out by the Inter-American Commission of Women (CIM) in compliance with its mandates for the February 2011 to February 2012 period, derived from the Inter-American Program on the Promotion of the Human Rights of Women and Gender Equity and Equality (IAP), the CIM Strategic Plan 2011-2016, the CIM Biennial Program of Work 2011-2012, specific resolutions of the OAS General Assembly and agreements reached by the CIM Executive Committee 2011-2012 during its First and Second Regular Sessions (respectively, 7-8 April 2011, Washington, DC and 31 October 2011, San Salvador).

In compliance with the different mandates entrusted by the OAS General Assembly to the General Secretariat regarding the strengthening of the CIM,^{1/} during the period under review the Secretary-General gave important political support to the CIM through his participation, and that of the Assistant Secretary General, in various events organized by the Commission. Moreover, the CIM also received support in its search for resources for existing or new projects.

Fulfillment of the mandate to strengthen the CIM involves improving internal coordination with all the areas of the Organization and ongoing participation in their activities to ensure inclusion of the human rights and gender equality perspective. It also includes implementation of a Gender Program for the OAS General Secretariat, as well as technical support for the different Secretariats and the member countries of the Organization.^{2/}

The CIM made progress in coordinating and collaborating with the principal areas of the OAS, contributing to a better understanding of the negative impact of gender inequalities in every thematic area to ensure that public policies and action strategies help eliminate inequalities between women and men in the countries of the Americas.

In this period, the CIM received three specific mandates from the General Assembly and 24 specific mandates from its Executive Committee. Of these, the three 3 General Assembly mandates are permanent, that is, they are standing mandates. Of the Executive Committee agreements, 18 have been fulfilled totally and 6 are in the process of being fulfilled.

The activities of CIM in implementing these mandates are presented in this report in accordance with the areas identified as “pillars” of the Organization of American States: i) Democracy and Governance, ii) Human Rights, iii) Multidimensional Security, and iv) Integrated Development.

Finally, the report contains some recommendations that the CIM submits for the consideration of the OAS General Assembly:

1. AG/RES. 1451 (XXVII-O/97), AG/RES. 1592 (XXVIII-O/98), AG/RES. 1625 (XXIX-O/99), AG/RES. 1777 (XXXI-O/01), AG/RES. 1941 (XXXIII-O/03), AG/RES. 2021 (XXXIV-O/04), AG/RES. 2124 (XXXV-O/05), AG/RES. 2161 (XXXVI-O/06), AG/RES. 2323 (XXXVII-O/07), AG/RES. 2441 (XXXIX-O/09), AG/RES. 2560 (XL-O/10), and AG/RES. 2685 (XLI-O/11).

1. Confer the support of the General Secretariat and OAS cooperating countries to the implementation of the IAP through the work of the CIM/OAS to institutionalize the women's rights and gender equality approach in the work of the Organization.
2. Promote harmonization of national legislation and public policies with the provisions of inter-American treaties and conventions on women's human rights, particularly the Inter-American Convention on the Prevention, Punishment and Eradication of Violence against Women (Convention of Belém do Pará), in order to advance the full exercise of women's rights and the achievement of gender equality.
3. Follow up Article 26 of the Declaration of San Salvador: "Advancing Economic and Social Recovery with Sustainable Development, Decent Work and Social Inclusion," adopted by the XVII Inter-American Conference of Ministers of Labour, and the Strategic guidelines for advancing gender equality and non-discrimination within a decent work framework, adopted by the XV IACML, by strengthening collaboration on the labor rights of women between the CIMT and the CIM
4. Within the framework of the Declaration of San Salvador on Gender, HIV and Violence against Women, adopted by the CIM Assembly of Delegates in 2007, analyze the links between the two global pandemics of HIV/AIDS and violence against women in both policy and programming, and support the work of the CIM and its strategic partners in the region.

I. ORIGIN, LEGAL BASIS, STRUCTURE, AND OBJECTIVES

The Inter-American Commission of Women (CIM) was established at the Sixth International Conference of American States (Havana, 1928) to prepare “juridical information and data of any other kind which may be deemed advisable to enable the Seventh International Conference of American States to take up the consideration of the civil and political equality of women in the continent.”

The Ninth International Conference of American States (Bogotá, 1948) approved the first Statute of the Commission, which consolidated its structure and authorized the Secretary General of the OAS to establish the Permanent Secretariat of the CIM.

In 1953, the Commission signed an agreement with the OAS Permanent Council under which the CIM was recognized as a specialized permanent Inter-American organization and technical autonomy in the pursuit of its objectives.

The Tenth Inter-American Conference (Caracas, 1954) amended the CIM’s Statute and confirmed it as a specialized permanent organization. It also expanded its powers and authorized it to amend its own Statute in the future.

Subsequently, in 1978, in accordance with Article 134 of the OAS Charter and the Standards for the Implementation and Coordination of the Provisions of the Charter Relating to the Inter-American Specialized Organizations, a new agreement between the Inter-American Commission of Women and the Organization of American States was signed.

As the principal hemispheric forum for women’s rights and gender equality, the CIM links the commitments acquired at the international level on women’s human rights with effective public policies at the national level, in order to support the full political, economic and social citizenship of women. The CIM responds to the rights and demands of women in five key areas: i) democracy and governance; ii) human rights; iii) multidimensional security; iv) integral development; and v) mainstreaming the gender rights and equality approach at the OAS and in its Member States. In these areas, the CIM provides technical support at the legal, political, and programming levels, manages specific regional projects, and uses participatory knowledge management to ensure that political and programming discussions and decisions are based on fact.

The CIM fulfills its objectives through the following organs: the Assembly of Delegates; the Executive Committee, composed of the president, three vice presidents, and five representatives of member countries, all elected by the Assembly; the delegates appointed by governments; and the Permanent Secretariat, which performs the Commission’s administrative, technical, and executive functions. The Assembly of Delegates is the supreme authority of the CIM, and its resolutions, together with those of the OAS General Assembly, establish the guidelines for CIM’s work.

The CIM Statute authorizes governments with a permanent observer accredited to the OAS to have permanent observer status with the Inter-American Commission of Women as well.

II. ACTIVITIES OF THE AUTHORITIES OF THE CIM

During this period, the post of President of the CIM was occupied by María del Rocío García Gaytán (Mexico). The post of vice president was held by Magdalena Faillace (Argentina),^{3/} Irene Sandiford-Garner (Barbados), and Sonia Escobedo (Guatemala).^{4/}

V. ACTIVITIES OF THE CIM EXECUTIVE SECRETARIAT:
IMPLEMENTATION OF THE CIM BIENNIAL PROGRAM OF WORK (2011-2012)

A. Women's substantive political citizenship for democracy and governability

Capacity Development for Leadership and Incidence in Public Policy from a Gender Equality Perspective

The second year of this project was financed by the Spanish Agency for International Development Cooperation (AECID); it began in May 2011 and will conclude in April 2012. The following results have been achieved so far:

Materials were prepared for a course on leadership training for an impact on public policies, with a view to accelerating compliance with governments' commitments in the area of women's human rights. Based on this in-person course, held for the first time in the Dominican Republic in October 2011, modules for a virtual course were prepared and will be offered for the first time in May 2012, through the Educational Portal of the Americas.

In the past five years, the Organization of American States and the United Nations Development Programme have been developing a consensus-generating process on the main challenges facing countries in their efforts to strengthen democracy and good governance in Latin America and the Caribbean, through dialogue and national consultations. This process is aimed at helping build a common vision of democracy to which the citizens of the region aspire, and at rethinking the democratic system and new forms of political participation. The results of these studies, talks, and consultations have been shaped in a new framework that is contributing to a new conception and meaning of democracy and new forms of political participation. A summary of this framework can be found in “Our Democracy” reports published by both organizations in 2010 and in “Politics, Money, and Power: a Dilemma for the Democracies of the Americas,” published by the OAS in 2011.

In this process, the views, rights and aspirations of women, as well as the gender dimension, need to be further developed. The framework prepared should be expanded to include the practice of women’s human rights and compliance with the binding commitments undertaken by countries in the CEDAW Convention and the Convention of Belém do Pará. Today, in Latin America and the Caribbean it is not possible to redefine democracy and governance without including the views, rights, and aspirations of women. Democracy without women is not a democracy of citizens, because women account for 50% or more of the population.

In this context, on April 4-6, 2011, the Inter-American Commission of Women, together with UN Women and the Ibero-American Secretariat (SEGIB) held the first Hemispheric Forum on Women’s Leadership for a Citizens’ Democracy, to highlight the rights, priorities, and aspirations of the women of the region in the area of democracy, in addition to the challenges democratic systems face in guaranteeing and protecting women’s rights to citizenship. This first forum, inaugurated by the Prime Minister of Trinidad and Tobago, Kamla Persad-Bissessar, OAS Secretary General José Miguel Insulza, and CIM President Rocío García Gaytán, provided an occasion to open a hemispheric dialogue on the implications and challenges involved in building a citizens’ democracy based on the rights and interests of women in their diversity, while at the same time promoting women’s demands regarding parity and gender equality in the political sphere.

This hemispheric dialogue allowed for the participation of a broad and diverse representation of women working in the region in the areas of democracy, politics, and women’s rights. It included ministers, parliamentarians, ambassadors, local government officials, representatives of human rights organizations, women’s organizations and networks, politicians, academicians, and women from think-tanks on democracy and human rights based in Washington, as well as intergovernmental organizations.

This event was also part of CIM’s efforts to fulfill the commitments assumed by OAS member states in the Declaration of the Inter-American Year of Women, “Women and Power: Toward a World with Equality,” CIM/DEC 10 (XXXV-O/10), mandates received to strengthen the CIM as a hemispheric political forum to promote the rights and full citizenship of the women of the Americas, and activities to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the Inter-American Democratic Charter

Prior to the actual Hemispheric Forum, a Virtual Hemispheric Consultation was also organized through the OAS Summits Virtual Community, to compile and systematize increased participation of civil society groups and other interested persons. The results of this consultation, which enjoyed broad-based and active participation, were presented during the Hemispheric Forum by the moderator.

As a result of the First Hemispheric Forum, and in response to a request from the CIM 2011-2012 Executive Committee, the Regional Working Group on Women's Full Citizenship for Democracy was officially set up. It comprises 18 experts from various countries of the region and representing diverse areas of study and work.

The Group held its first in-person meeting in Mexico City on September 12-14, with the support of the Mexican Secretariat of Foreign Affairs. Its task was to define the scope, objectives, focus, content structure, and methodology pertaining to preparation of a regional analytical framework on citizens' democracy from the perspective of women, to better coordinate the work of the Working Group with that of the OAS and UNDP in this area. On that occasion, there was an exchange of views between members of the Group and the OAS General Secretariat, in which they examined some of the obstacles current democratic systems encounter in guaranteeing the rights of women and gender equality.

The Group held a second meeting in Lima, Peru on November 16-18, 2011, in order to review the initial progress made in drafting several chapters of the aforesaid analytical framework. That meeting was attended by the Peruvian Minister for Women and Social Development at the time and CIM Principal Delegate, Aida García Naranjo.

Both meetings of the Working Group were organized in cooperation with UN Women and IDEA International, and thematic experts from both participated in them as well.

The Working Group will hold a virtual consultation through the OAS Summits Virtual Community in March 2012, which will focus on several key questions regarding the challenges faced by democratic systems in guaranteeing the practice of women's rights and the exercise of their political rights as citizens.

In January 2012, the CIM Principal Delegate from Ecuador convened an open-ended consultative group, to which all CIM delegates were invited, to follow up on the work of the Regional Working Group.

B. Women's human rights and gender-based violence^{10/}

Integration of policies and programs on HIV and violence against women from a human rights perspective in Central America

To follow up on the Declaration of San Salvador adopted by the CIM in November 2007, the CIM Secretariat has continued to implement this AECID-financed project initiated in September 2008 in El Salvador, Guatemala, and Panama. During the current period, comprehensive care models for female victims/survivors of violence and HIV-positive women were developed. In this connection, the following three web conferences were held in the three participating countries (El Salvador, Guatemala, and Panama): "Legal framework of HIV and violence against women: A human rights issue" (August 17, 2011); "Ethical considerations for integrating policies and programs on HIV and violence against women from a human rights perspective in Central America" (September 29, 2011); and "Human rights, HIV, and violence against women: Implications for public policy development" (October 18, 2011).

The project began with a variety of activities to help in building a collective pool of knowledge on these subjects. In May 2011, the project launched a virtual bulletin; six issues of it have been disseminated, covering the progress made under the project and matters of interests in the area of HIV and violence against women. In July 2011, the project initiated a Practice Community on HIV and violence against women. The Community brings together specialists from all over the region to pool knowledge on this subject and to exchange ideas and experiences.

In Panama (October 20-21, 2011) and in Guatemala (November 10-11, 2011), the project conducted roundtables and courses on "HIV, violence against women, and human rights." The courses brought together key partners in the project (government officials and civil society organizations) to develop the skills of the human resources responsible for promoting the development of comprehensive policies and programs on HIV and violence against women with a human rights focus, and to lend support to an intersectoral response to emerging public policy problems related to both issues.

The project concluded with an Intersectoral Meeting on Comprehensive Responses to Human Rights, HIV and Violence against Women in Central America (January 11-20, 2012, in La Antigua), where the key partners in the project met with international experts to share the results of implementation of the project in their countries and to identify opportunities to follow up on the project within the countries where it was implemented. The specific results of the meeting were:

- Dissemination of the results and achievements of the project implemented by the CIM;
- Analysis of available information on the intersections between HIV and violence against women in the region, advances in generating evidence, and current gaps;
- Exchange of promising practices, experiences, and lessons learned in Latin America and Caribbean countries, in their integrated approach to HIV and violence against women;
- Consensus-building on regional guidelines for integrating policies and programs on HIV and violence against women from a human rights and gender perspective.

For more information on the progress of the MESECVI, see the Report on the Follow-up Mechanism to the Implementation of the Inter-American Convention on the Prevention, Punishment and Eradication of Violence against Women, "Convention of Belém do Pará" pursuant to Resolution AG/RES. 2692 (XLI-O/11) CIM/doc.115/12.

The project produced a series of publications on the subject of HIV and violence against women that are available on the CIM webpage:¹¹

International Models Project on Women's Rights (IMPOWR)

Together with the American Bar Association, CIM initiated substantive cooperation on the IMPOWR platform – International Models Project on Women's Rights (<http://www.impowr.org/>), whose purpose is to be an open and dynamic source for building a collective pool of knowledge on women's rights under the law in all countries of the world. Using the Wikipedia model, IMPOWR invites users to contribute information on advances and setbacks on legal issues affecting women's rights, using as a framework the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW) and the Inter-American Convention on the Prevention, Punishment, and Eradication of Violence against Women (Convention of Belém do Pará).

As part of this cooperation, the CIM will contribute information on the countries of the Americas. With the support of experts from various countries, work has already begun on preparing pages for Argentina, Canada, Colombia, Costa Rica, Ecuador, El Salvador, United States, Guatemala, Jamaica, Mexico, Peru, and Uruguay.

Jurisprudence on Violence against Women

With the Vance Center of the New York Bar Association, the CIM has begun a collaborative effort to identify best practices in inter-American and national jurisprudence on violence against women, within the framework of implementation of the Convention of Belém do Pará. An analysis of the initial situation has been prepared, and it will be supplemented with a compilation of information from selected countries (tentatively, Chile, Costa Rica, Mexico, and Peru). This preliminary analysis of jurisprudence on violence against women will be used as a basis for preparing materials to sensitize and train legal personnel working on cases of violence against women.

Advancing Gender Equality in the Context of Decent Work

With funds from the Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA), the CIM Secretariat completed its execution of the project "Advancing Gender Equality in the Context of Decent Work," in cooperation with the Department of Social Development and Employment (DSDE). In the context of the "Strategic Guidelines for Advancing Gender Equality and Non-discrimination within a Decent Work Framework," adopted at the Fifteenth Inter-American Conference of Ministers of Labor (XV IACML, Trinidad and Tobago, 2007), and on the basis of the results of the study on "Institutionalization of a Gender Approach in the Ministries of Labor of the Americas," a series of subregional workshops was organized on strategic planning with a gender perspective (Georgetown/April 2010, San Salvador/May 2010, Asunción/September 2010, and Quito/October 2010).

Following up on these workshops, the project culminated in November 2011 with the organization of the first High-Level Dialogue among Ministries of Labor and National Machineries for the Advancement of Women in OAS Member Countries (November 1, San Salvador). This dialogue made it possible to learn more about the experiences, recommendations, and views of both government and labor and management sectors, to achieve greater equality between men and women in the work place, particularly as regards the following:

- Increasing the participation and employment of women;
- Reducing gender gaps in labor income and the informal market
- Improving the quality of jobs for women
- Fully incorporating women into the work place, free of discrimination and with equal opportunities
- Ensuring equitable access to welfare benefits;
- Contributing to efforts to reconcile paid work and family responsibilities;
- Increasing women's participation in social dialogue and trade unions;
- Recognizing the value of nonremunerated work;
- Preventing and eradicating all forms of gender violence in the workplace.

The project has produced a series of documents:¹²

D. Citizen security from a gender perspective

On June 5, 2011, during the OAS General Assembly, the CIM, in cooperation with the Inter-American Commission on Human Rights (IACHR), the Inter-American Institute of Human Rights (IIHR), and the United Nations Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights (UNOHCHR), organized a round table on “Citizen Security and Human Rights.”¹³ The purpose of the event was to identify priority policies and programs to further the incorporation of a human rights-based and gender equality approach in public citizen security policies. The CIM President inaugurated the event, together with Dinah Shelton, President of the IACHR, and Franzy Hasbún, Chief of Staff for Security of El Salvador and Secretary for Strategic Affairs in the Office of the President. The event included a panel discussion on “Women, gender, and citizen security,” in which prominent experts from the region participated. Present at the roundtable were ministers and vice-ministers, delegates, and experts from the region, as well as members of civil society.

In preparation for the event, the CIM produced a series of briefing notes¹⁴ on:

- Citizen security from a rights and gender equality perspective
- Violence against women in Latin America
- Violence against women in the Caribbean.

As a result of the participation of the CIM in the Regional Colloquium: Women Leaders as Agents of Change (Trinidad and Tobago, June 2011), and specifically the presentation on Gender, Violence, and Security in the Caribbean, the delegates of the Organisation of East Caribbean States (OECS) voiced their interest in having a more extensive exchange of information and ideas on the security of women in the Caribbean. In this context, and with the support of the Government of Trinidad and Tobago, on September 30, 2011 a roundtable was held on “Effective Strategies for Combating Violence against Women in OECS States.” This roundtable brought together the MESECV experts and competent national authorities, the OAS national representatives in those countries, the permanent representatives of those countries to the OAS, and some international, academic, and civil society experts.

The President of the CIM instructed the CIM Executive Secretary to attend the Eleventh Regular Meeting of the Inter-American Committee against Terrorism (CICTE) on March 17, 2011, in Washington, D.C. As a result, the CIM provided technical support to CICTE officials to ensure the incorporation of a gender perspective in their projects.

E. Other topics

In November 2011, the CIM organized the Fourth Meeting of Ministers or of Highest-Ranking Authorities Responsible for the Advancement of Women in the Member States (REMIM IV) in San Salvador. The purpose of this meeting was to analyze and discuss the principal topics of the Sixth Summit of the Americas (April 14-15, 2012) – security, access to and use of technologies, natural disasters, reduction of poverty and inequities, partnership for development, and the physical integration of the Americas—from a women’s rights and gender equality perspective.

13. The complete event can be seen on video on the OAS web page:
(http://www.oas.org/en/media_center/videos.asp?sCodigo=11-0165&videotype=10).

14. Available at: <http://www.oas.org/es/cim/biblioteca.asp>

In this context, REMIM IV adopted a resolution (CIM/REMIM-IV/doc.6/11 Rev.1) that recommends the inclusion of specific language in the resulting Summit document to ensure that the needs and demands of women are reflected in the final conclusions of that event. The REMIM resolution was communicated to the Chairman of the Summit Implementation Review Group (SIRG) and to the competent national coordinators in each member state.

In January 2012, the CIM President sent the CIM delegates a communication urging them to work with their foreign ministries and OAS Permanent Missions to ensure that the contributions made to the documents of the Summit of the Americas at REMIM IV are incorporated into the final version of the resulting document.

VI. RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Confer the support of the General Secretariat and OAS cooperating countries to the implementation of the IAP through the work of the CIM/OAS to institutionalize the women's rights and gender equality approach in the work of the Organization.
2. Promote harmonization of national legislation and public policies with the provisions of inter-American treaties and conventions on women's human rights, particularly the Inter-American Convention on the Prevention, Punishment and Eradication of Violence against Women (Convention of Belém do Pará), in order to advance the full exercise of women's rights and the achievement of gender equality.
3. Follow up Article 26 of the Declaration of San Salvador: "Advancing Economic and Social Recovery with Sustainable Development, Decent Work and Social Inclusion," adopted by the XVII Inter-American Conference of Ministers of Labour, and the Strategic guidelines for advancing gender equality and non-discrimination within a decent work framework, adopted by the XV IACML, by strengthening collaboration on the labor rights of women between the CIMT and the CIM
4. Within the framework of the Declaration of San Salvador on Gender, HIV and Violence against Women, adopted by the CIM Assembly of Delegates in 2007, analyze the links between the two global pandemics of HIV/AIDS and violence against women in both policy and programming, and support the work of the CIM and its strategic partners in the region.
