CONTEST
CALL FOR AWARDS

ICTs TO PREVENT AND ERADICATE VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN.

PURPOSE OF THE AWARDS: To recognize the three best initiatives, projects, programs or examples of public policy involving the use of information and communication technologies, highlighting their implementation and support in the region of the Americas for the prevention and eradication of violence against women.

ELIGIBILITY OF PARTICIPANTS: Participation is open to natural persons and legal entities, such as: governmental and non-governmental organizations, civil society and private organizations, the Member States of the Organization of American States (OAS), and the Associate Members of the Inter-American Telecommunication Commission (CITEL).

CATEGORY: Proposals that contain projects, programs or examples of public policy which are in the execution stage and which focus on the use and application of ICTs as tools that directly benefit the prevention and eradication of violence against women in the Americas region.

AWARDS: There will be a total of three awards for the best projects, programs and/or examples of public policy selected by the Evaluation Committee.

- Recognition given by the Secretary General of the OAS.
- Presentation of the project, program and/or example of public policy within the framework of the 30th meeting of PCC.I.
- Dissemination of the project, program, or example of public policy through the CITEL, CIM and OAS platforms.

RECEIPT OF PROPOSALS: June 1 – July 31, 2016.

The proposals must be submitted by email to the Inter-American Telecommunication Commission (CITEL): citel@oas.org

More details and information about the Call for the Awards and contest rules at: www.citel.oas.org