1 BACKGROUND

The Organization of American States (OAS) is a public international organization, with headquarters at 1889 F. St. N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006. The OAS brings together the nations of the Western hemisphere to promote democracy, strengthen human rights, foster peace, security and cooperation and advance common interests. For more information about the OAS, please refer to the OAS’s web site at www.oas.org.

The Department of Sustainable Development (DSD) of the Executive Secretariat for Integral Development (SEDI) supports the Member States of the General Secretariat of the Organization of American States (GS/OAS) in the design and implementation of policies, programs and projects oriented to integrate environmental priorities with poverty alleviation, and socio-economic development goals. Translating sustainable development and environmental protection goals into concrete actions, DSD supports the execution of multiple country projects in such diverse areas as Integrated Water Management; Energy and Climate Change Mitigation; Risk Management and Climate Change Adaptation; Biodiversity and Sustainable Land Management; and Environmental Law, Policy and Good Governance. DSD also supports transparency and public participation, as practical ingredients of good governance.

The Integrated Water Resources Management Section within the DSD manages the OAS Water Program. Taking into consideration that the countries of the Western hemisphere share over 70 major transboundary river basins and aquifers, the primary objective of the OAS Water Program is to support Member States in their efforts to improve the management, conservation, and sustainable use of both superficial and ground water resources by promoting social and economic growth in these regions. Specific actions include the promotion of water governance; the assistance to develop policies, laws and regulations for integrated water resources management; the building capacity in regional, national and local institutions; and the support of the exchange of information through specialized networks in water resources.

Furthermore, in partnership with institutions such as the United Nations Environment Programme (UNEP), the World Bank, and the Global Environment Facility (GEF); the GS/OAS through the OAS Water Program within SEDI/DSD acts as a regional executing agency for various water resource management projects being conducted in transboundary, multi-country river basins and aquifers in the Americas.

The CReW+ is an Integrated Approach to Water and Wastewater Management Using Innovative Solutions and Promoting Financing Mechanisms in the Wider Caribbean Region. The objective of CReW+ is to “To implement innovative technical small-scale solutions in the Wider Caribbean Region using an integrated water and wastewater management approach building on sustainable financing mechanisms piloted through the Caribbean Regional Fund for Wastewater Management.” By building on the frameworks and lessons of earlier projects (including CReW), CREW+ will implement small-scale, local, rural, peri-urban, and community-based technological solutions for integrated water and wastewater management. The project aims to implement solutions for the improved management of wastewater that can be up-scaled and replicated so as to significantly reduce the negative impact of domestic wastewater on the environment and people of the Wider Caribbean Region and to similarly implement appropriate solutions at selected watersheds and freshwater basins to ensure greater water security for vulnerable rural communities. This will be achieved through targeted water resources conservation measures, wastewater and water re-use, improved land use practices and greater water use efficiency. These interventions will increase resilience of local communities to the impacts of droughts and more generally to the impacts of climate change and climate variability on the water sector.

The GEF CReW+ Project as a vehicle for development of the National Communications Strategy on IWWM: The objectives of the GEF CReW+ project are consistent with two approved national Polices of the Government of Barbados: The 2020 Water Protection and Land Use Zoning Policy and the National Water Reuse Policy, 2018. There are also potential synergies between the Government of Barbados’ major transformational initiative the Roofs to Reef Programme (R2RP). The GEF CReW+ Project will serve as a catalyst to implement the development of a holistic National Communications Strategy and associated Implementation Plan, a requirement of the National Water Reuse Policy, which aligns with Component 4 of GEF CReW+ within the broader national context of the R2RP.

2 OBJECTIVE

General Objective: Development of a National Communications Strategy and Implementation Plan.

Barbados being a water scarce country and with the expected impacts of climate change, maintaining water security will be an increasing challenge. Under these projected conditions it is important to use existing water resources in an effective and efficient manner. To this end, Barbados has developed a National Water Reuse Policy (2018). The Reuse Policy is supported by the Barbados Physical Development Plan Amendment, 2017 and the 2020 Water Protection and Land Use Zoning Policy, which call for the treatment of all wastewater discharges. In addition, there continues to be discussion around the expansion of the tourism sector and more recently the need to substantially increase Barbados’ population – with all that these two issues would entail. There needs to be a deeper understanding of the role of IWWM and its importance across proposed population changes. The policy initiatives need to be communicated effectively and efficiently to support the national development pathways. This entails gaining the understanding and support of key target groups, professionals, service providers and the public alike, to facilitate awareness of the needs and opportunities relating to water reuse and changing attitudes. Hence there is a need for improved awareness and understanding of the benefits of implementing integrated approaches to water and wastewater management to safeguard future water security. A key factor in achieving this will be the development of information and information products, and effective means of knowledge and information transfer to ensure the Policies achieve their desired outcomes and impacts. Understanding the current conditions with respect to reclaimed and water reuse, the ambit of wastewater infrastructure and virtual water footprint are necessary to inform the strategy. The strategy will also promote a blue economy approach which incorporates the reuse of wastewater for productive purposes.

3 RFP SCHEDULE
