This event offers the first opportunity to have an open, dynamic, and inclusive debate that contributes to the definition of strategic areas of action of the Inter-American Program for Sustainable Development (PIDS) and the development of a post 2015 sustainable development agenda for the Americas. Furthermore, this event seeks to raise awareness and open a platform for debate to a diversity of voices coming from representatives of civil society organizations, community leaders, the youth as well as other key actors. Glenda Umaña, who is a renowned CNN journalist and reporter of the region, will moderate the event.
