ECUADOR: We reaffirm our strong commitment to promoting and respecting the fundamental principles and rights at work: freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining; elimination of all forms of forced or compulsory labor; effective abolition of child labor; and elimination of discrimination in respect of employment and occupation; as well as the principles of regional solidarity and cooperation; equity; decent employment and wages; limited hours of work; social protection floor; human rights and social inclusion enshrined in the Charter of the Organization of American States; the Inter-American Democratic Charter; the Social Charter of the Americas; the Declaration of the International Labor Organization (ILO) on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work; the ILO Declaration on Social Justice for a Fair Globalization; and the ILO Centennial Declaration for the Future of Work- and its human-centered approach; as well as the global call for a human-centered action on the crisis caused by COVID-19, adopted at the 109th International Labor Conference.

HONDURAS: Comment on “limited hours of work”: Is it assumed as the maximum legal working day?

MEXICO: We reaffirm our strong commitment to promoting and respecting the fundamental principles and rights at work: freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining; elimination of all forms of forced or compulsory labor; effective abolition of child labor; and elimination of discrimination in respect of employment and occupation; as well as the principles of regional solidarity and cooperation; equity; decent employment and wages; ~~limited hours of~~ fair working day; social protection floor; human rights and social inclusion enshrined in the Charter of the Organization of American States; the Inter-American Democratic Charter; the Social Charter of the Americas; the Declaration of the International Labor Organization (ILO) on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work; the ILO Declaration on Social Justice for a Fair Globalization; and the ILO Centennial Declaration for the Future of Work.

NICARAGUA: We reaffirm our strong commitment to promoting and respecting the fundamental principles and rights at work: freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining; elimination of all forms of forced or compulsory labor; effective abolition of child labor; and elimination of discrimination in respect of employment and occupation; as well as the principles of regional solidarity and cooperation; equity; decent employment and wages; limited hours of work; social protection floor; human rights; strengthening of tripartism in labor relations as a means to achieve and maintain social peace and social inclusion enshrined in the Charter of the Organization of American States; the Inter-American Democratic Charter; the Social Charter of the Americas; the Declaration of the International Labor Organization (ILO) on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work; the ILO Declaration on Social Justice for a Fair Globalization; and the ILO Centennial Declaration for the Future of Work.

Comment: Edits for conciseness and clarity

CEATAL: We reaffirm our strong commitment to promoting and respecting the fundamental principles and rights at work: freedom of association and the effective recognition of the right to collective bargaining free and voluntary ; elimination of all forms of forced or compulsory labor; effective abolition of child labor; and elimination of discrimination in respect of employment and occupation; as well as the principles of regional solidarity and cooperation; equity; productive employment and decent wages; limited hours of work; social protection floor; human rights and social inclusion enshrined in the Charter of the Organization of American States; the Inter-American Democratic Charter; the Social Charter of the Americas; the Declaration of the International Labor Organization (ILO) on Fundamental Principles and Rights at Work; the ILO Declaration on Social Justice for a Fair Globalization; and the ILO Centennial Declaration for the Future of Work.

3. We underscore our commitment to the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) as a framework for designing and implementing human-centered public policies aimed at achieving social and economic recovery of our countries after the COVID-19 pandemic. We emphasize in particular Goal 8 regarding the promotion of inclusive and sustainable economic growth and decent employment and work, as we understand that achieving decent work is essential to fight inequality and eradicate poverty. In this same sense, and considering that the impact of the COVID-19 crisis was greater among the most vulnerable sectors of our societies, as well as among women, we understand that observance of Goals 5, 10 and 1 is essential in this context as they refer to gender equality, the reduction of inequality and the end of poverty, respectively.

BARBADOS: We underscore We emphasize in particular Goal 8 regarding the promotion of inclusive and sustainable economic growth, ~~and decent employment and work~~ full and productive employment and decent work for all, as we understand that achieving decent work is essential to fight inequality and eradicate poverty. In this same sense, and considering that the impact of the COVID-19 crisis was greater among the most vulnerable sectors of our societies, including the youth as well as among women, we understand that observance of Goals 5, 10 and 1 is essential in this context as they refer to gender equality, the reduction of inequality and the end of poverty, respectively.

ECUADOR: Comment: It is recommended to emphasize only in the Sustainable Development Goal No. 5 corresponding to achieving equality between genders and empower all women and girls.

MEXICO: We underscore In this same sense and considering that the impact of the COVID-19 crisis was greater among the most vulnerable sectors of our societies, ~~as well as among~~ them women, we understand that observance of Goals 5, 10 and 1 is essential in this context as they refer to gender equality, the reduction of inequality and the end of poverty, respectively.

PANAMA: We underscore We emphasize in particular Goal 8 regarding the promotion of inclusive and sustainable economic growth, ~~and~~ decent employment and work, as we understand that achieving decent work is essential to fight inequality and eradicate poverty. In this same sense...

PARAGUAY: We underscore our commitment to the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) as a framework for designing and implementing human-centered public policies aimed at achieving social and economic recovery of our countries after the COVID-19 pandemic. We emphasize in particular Goal 8 regarding the promotion of inclusive and sustainable economic growth and decent employment and work for all. ~~as we understand that~~ this objective urge us to achieving inclusive and sustained economic growth, creating decent work for all, if possible, with better living standards, maintaining the achievements made, accelerating the implementation of pending measures, seeking economic resilience, as this pandemic has caused a historic recession with the record level of unemployment and shortages creating humanitarian crises in the poorest countries . Therefore, to Goal 8 that concerns us are added 1: End to Poverty, 2: Zero hunger, 5: Gender Equality and Empowerment of Women and 10: Reduce inequality within and among countries. Our strategic policies must eliminate the causes of unemployment, and the social exclusion of the population groups, which determine a high vulnerability to diseases, ignorance and other disasters that prevent a decent life, directly linked to social inequality that undermines social coercion, increasing political and social tension driving instability and conflict. ~~is essential to fight inequality and eradicate poverty. In this same sense and considering that the impact of the COVID-19 crisis was greater among the most vulnerable sectors of our societies, as well as among women, we understand that observance of Goals 5, 10 and 1 is essential in this context as they refer to gender equality, the reduction of inequality and the end of poverty, respectively.~~

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO: We underscore our commitment to the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) as a framework for designing and implementing human-centered public policies aimed at achieving social and economic recovery of our countries ~~after~~ from the COVID-19 pandemic. We emphasize in particular Goal 8 regarding the promotion of sustained, inclusive and sustainable economic growth, full and productive employment and decent work for all ~~and decent employment and work~~ as we understand that achieving decent work is essential to fight inequality and eradicate poverty. In a similar vein ~~this same sense and~~ considering that the impact of the COVID-19 crisis was greater among the most vulnerable sectors of our societies, as well as among women, we understand that observance of Goals 5, 10 and 1 is essential in this context as they refer to gender equality, the reduction of inequality and the end of poverty, respectively.

URUGUAY: We underscore In this same sense, and considering that the impact of the COVID-19 crisis was greater among the most vulnerable sectors of our societies, as well as among women, we understand that observance of Goals 5, 10 and 1 is essential in this context as they refer to gender equality, the reduction of inequality and ~~the end~~ the reduction of poverty, respectively.

UNITED STATES: We underscore our commitment to the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development and the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) as a framework for designing and implementing human-centered public policies aimed at achieving social and economic equality ~~recovery of~~ as our countries recover from ~~after~~ the COVID-19 pandemic. We emphasize ~~in particular~~ Goal 8 ~~regarding the promotion of inclusive and sustainable economic growth and decent employment and work, as we understand that~~ recognizing that achieving decent work is essential to ~~fight~~ combatting inequality, and ~~eradicating~~ e poverty. ~~In this same sense, and~~ C considering that the impact of the COVID-19 crisis was greater among the most vulnerable and disadvantaged members ~~sectors~~ of our societies, as well as among women, ~~we understand that~~ observance of Goals 5, 10 and 1 is essential ~~in this context~~ as these goals ~~they~~ refer to gender equality, the reduction of inequality and the end of poverty, respectively.

CEATAL: We underscore We emphasize in particular Goal 8 regarding the promotion of inclusive and sustainable economic growth and productive employment decent and work, as we understand that achieving decent work is essential to fight inequality and eradicate poverty. In this same sense, and considering that the impact of the COVID-19 crisis was greater among the most vulnerable sectors of our societies, as well as among women, we understand that observance of Goals 5, 10 and 1 is essential in this context as they refer to gender equality, the reduction of inequality and the end of poverty, respectively.

4. We reaffirm our will to strengthen the role of Ministries of Labor, social dialogue, regional integration and cooperation processes based on solidarity and the search for consensus in the face of the new normal and the changes that have arisen in the world of work. We express our commitment to address the challenges that these pose in terms of developing the required skills: the emergence of new forms of work such as telework, working from home and working on digital platforms; social security sustainability; the promotion of sustainable enterprise and the enhancement of regional integration in value chains.

CANADA: Comment(on the concept of “new normal”): While Canada understands that this is a commonly used term to refer to these times of post-Covid-19, Canada would seek clarification on the use of this term in the context of this Declaration, or perhaps include quotation marks, i.e. “new normal”.

GUATEMALA: We reaffirm our will to strengthen the role of Ministries of Labor, social dialogue, regional integration and cooperation processes based on solidarity and the search for consensus in the face ~~of the new normal and~~ the changes that have arisen in the world of work. We express our commitment

Comment on “New normal”: It is suggested to refer to changes in the world of work, which already imply a different normality. Not only could it be redundant, but to date it is still not known exactly what that normality will be.

HONDURAS: We reaffirm We express our commitment to address the challenges that these pose in terms of developing the required job skills: the emergence of new forms of work such as telework, working from home and working on digital platforms; social security sustainability; the promotion of sustainable enterprise and the enhancement of regional integration in value chains.

MEXICO: Comment: In Mexico, “work from home” refers to the kind of work which is usually carried out for an employer, at the worker’s home, without the immediate supervision or direction of the person providing the work. It is about the transformation of raw materials or supplies for their subsequent sale. The concept of “working from home” referred to in this paragraph is similar to the one used in Mexico. (It is considered convenient to clarify on this point)

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO: We reaffirm our will to strengthen the role of Ministries of Labor, social dialogue mechanisms, regional integration and cooperation processes based on solidarity and the search for consensus in the face of the COVID- 19 pandemic and the resultant new normal and the changes that have arisen in the world of work. We express our commitment to address the challenges that these pose in terms of developing the required skills to respond to: the ~~emergence~~ increased thrust towards ~~of~~ new forms of work such as telework, working from home and working on digital platforms; social security sustainability; the promotion of sustainable enterprises and the enhancement of regional integration in value chains.

UNITED STATES: We reaffirm our ~~goal will~~ to strengthen the role of ~~labor m~~ Ministries of Labor, social dialogue, and regional ~~integration and cooperation processes based on solidarity and the search for consensus in the face of the new normal and the~~ to address changes that have arisen in the world of work. We express our commitment to ~~address the challenges that these pose in terms of developing the required~~ needed skills; ~~the emergence~~ and addressing the prominent use of existing and ~~of new forms of work, including such as telework, working from home and working on~~ through digital platforms; while promoting social security, sustainability, ~~the promotion of sustainable enterprises, and the enhancement of~~ regional integration in value chains, and decent work.

Comment: We note “regional integration” is unclear and recommend deleting

Comment: What does “regional integration in value chains” mean?

5. Therefore, we, the Ministers of Labor and Heads of Delegation of OAS Member States adopt the following recommendations to serve as a frame of reference for developing labor policies to face the effects of the crisis, contribute to recovery and address the challenges brought about by changes in the world of work with dignified employment, sustainable development and social justice.

BARBADOS: Therefore, we, the Ministers of Labor and Heads of Delegation of OAS Member States adopt the following recommendations to serve as a frame of reference for developing labor policies to face the effects of the crisis, contribute to recovery and address the challenges brought about by changes in the world of work ~~with~~ by promoting and fostering policies aimed at supporting dignified employment, sustainable development and social justice.

PANAMA: Therefore, we, the Ministers of Labor and Heads of Delegation of OAS Member States adopt the following recommendations to serve as a frame of reference for developing labor policies to face the effects of the crisis, contribute to recovery and address the challenges brought about by changes in the world of work ~~with dignified employment, sustainable development and social justice.~~

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO: Therefore, we, the Ministers of Labor and Heads of Delegation of OAS Member States adopt the following recommendations to serve as a frame of reference for developing labor policies to face the effects of the crisis, contribute to sustainable recovery, build resilience, and address the challenges brought about by changes in the world of work with dignified employment, sustainable development and social justice for all.

UNITED STATES: Therefore, we, ~~the Ministers of Labor and Heads of Delegation of OAS Member States~~ adopt the following recommendations to serve as a frame of reference for developing labor and employment policies that aim to promote recovery and address ~~face~~ the effects of the crisis, ~~contribute to recovery and address the challenges brought about by changes in the world of work~~ through decent work ~~with dignified employment,~~ sustainable development, and social justice.

Comment: Recommend deleting from paragraph 5 to avoid redundancy with paragraph 1.

THE CONTRIBUTION OF THE WORLD OF WORK TO POST-COVID-19 RECOVERY AND TO THE BUILDING OF MORE RESILIENT, JUST, AND EQUITABLE SOCIETIES

HONDURAS: THE CONTRIBUTION OF THE WORLD OF WORK TO POST-COVID-19 RECOVERY AND TO THE BUILDING OF MORE RESILIENT, JUST, AND INCLUSIVE EQUITABLE SOCIETIES

UNITED STATES: THE IMPORTANCE ~~CONTRIBUTION~~ OF THE WORLD OF WORK ~~TO~~ IN POST-COVID-19 RECOVERY AND TO THE BUILDING OF MORE RESILIENT, JUST, AND EQUITABLE SOCIETIES

CEATAL: THE CONTRIBUTION OF THE WORLD OF WORK TO POST-COVID-19 RECOVERY AND TO THE BUILDING OF MORE SOSTENIBLES RESILIENT, JUST, AND EQUITABLE SOCIETIES

6. We commit to amplifying our efforts to promote both employment and business recovery; fight the precariousness of work, poverty and inequality in all its dimensions; and serve populations in situations of greater vulnerability in the face of pre-existing inequalities deepening as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic and its serious impact on employment, economic activity, workers and businesses.

CANADA: We commit to amplifying our efforts to promote both employment and business recovery; fight the precariousness of work, poverty and inequality in all its dimensions; and serve populations in situations of greater vulnerability such as women, Indigenous peoples, persons with disabilities, older persons and visible minorities in the face of pre-existing inequalities deepening as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic and its serious impact on employment, economic activity, workers and businesses.

Comment: Canada proposes the inclusion of this language to highlight those vulnerable groups that have been particularly impacted by the pandemic crisis.

ECUADOR: We commit to amplifying our efforts to promote both employment and business recovery; fight the precariousness of work, poverty and inequality in all its dimensions; and serve populations in situations of greater vulnerability and informality ~~in the face of pre-existing inequalities deepening~~ as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic ~~and its serious impact on employment, economic activity, workers and businesses.~~

PANAMA: We commit to amplifying our efforts to promote both employment and business recovery; fight the precariousness of work, poverty and inequality in all its dimensions; and serve populations in situations of greater vulnerability in the face of pre-existing inequalities deepening as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic ~~and its serious impact on employment, economic activity, workers and businesses.~~

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO: We commit to amplifying our efforts to promote both employment and business recovery; fight the precariousness of work, poverty and inequality in all its dimensions; and serve populations in situations of greater vulnerability in the face of pre-existing inequalities which are deepening ~~deepening~~ as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic and its serious impact on employment, economic activity, workers and businesses particularly in those sectors hardest hit by the pandemic.

UNITED STATES: We commit to amplifying our efforts to promote both employment and business recovery; fight ~~the precariousness of~~ work, poverty, and inequality in all its dimensions; and serve populations in situations of greater vulnerability in the face of pre-existing inequalities that have deepened as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic and its serious impact on employment, economic activity, workers, and businesses.

CEATAL: We commit to amplifying our efforts to promote both employment and business recovery; fight ~~the~~ informality ~~precariousness of work,~~ poverty and inequality in all its dimensions; and serve populations in situations of greater vulnerability in the face of pre-existing inequalities deepening as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic and its serious impact on employment, economic activity, workers and businesses.

7. Thus, we will develop active policies and human-centered strategies guided by social justice, equity, decent work and sustainable development, and are aimed at creating and formalizing employment and reducing labor informality.

BARBADOS: Thus, we will develop active policies and human-centered strategies which are guided by the ideals of social justice, equity, decent work and sustainable development, and are aimed at creating and formalizing employment and reducing labor informality.

COSTA RICA: Thus, we will continue developing active policies and human-centered strategies guided by social justice, equity, decent work and sustainable development, and are aimed at creating and formalizing employment and reducing labor informality.

HONDURAS: Thus, we will develop active policies and human-centered strategies guided by social justice, equity, decent work and sustainable development, and are aimed at ~~creating~~ generating and formalizing employment and reducing labor informality.

MEXICO: Thus, we will develop active policies and human-centered strategies, and will strengthen the existing ones, guided by social justice, equity, decent work, and sustainable development, and are aimed at creating and formalizing employment, ~~and~~ reducing labor informality and job insecurity, as well as promoting job training.

NICARAGUA: Thus, we will develop active policies and human-centered strategies guided by social justice, equity, decent work and sustainable development, and are aimed at creating and formalizing employment and reducing labor informality, as well as a timely address to other forms of work like entrepreneurship and self-employment.

PANAMA: ~~Thus, we~~ We will develop human active policies and human-centered strategies, aimed at creating and formalizing employment, and reducing labor informality, guided by social justice, equity, decent work and sustainable development. ~~and are aimed at creating and formalizing employment and reducing labor informality.~~

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO: Thus, we will develop active policies and human-centered strategies guided by social justice, equity, decent work and sustainable development, ~~and~~ that are aimed at creating and formalizing employment and reducing labor informality.

UNITED STATES: Thus, we will develop active policies and human-centered strategies guided by social justice, equity, decent work and sustainable development, and ~~are~~ aimed at creating and formalizing employment and reducing labor informality.

CEATAL: Thus, we will develop active policies and human-centered strategies guided by social justice, equity, productive employment, decent work and sustainable development, and are aimed at creating and formalizing productive employment and reducing labor informality.

8. We will strengthen and introduce substantive changes in our social security and social protection systems to guarantee their soundness, sustainability and foundation in the principles of solidarity, labor inclusion and non-discrimination in the world of work, as well as take steps towards universal social protection.

CANADA: We will strengthen and introduce substantive changes in our social security and social protection systems to guarantee their soundness, sustainability and foundation in the principles of solidarity, labor inclusion and non-discrimination in the world of work, including the prevention of ageism and harassment and sexual violence in the workplace, as well as take steps towards universal social protection and pay equity.

Comment: Canada proposes new language to include ageism, harassment and sexual violence, and pay equity. However, these references could possibly be moved elsewhere in the Declaration.

COLOMBIA: We will strengthen and introduce substantive changes in our social security and social protection systems to guarantee their soundness, sustainability and foundation in the principles of solidarity, progressive realization, labor inclusion and non-discrimination in the world of work, as well as take steps towards universal social protection, according to the national circumstances of each country.

COSTA RICA: We will promote the strengthening and ~~introduction of~~ substantive changes in our social security and social protection systems to guarantee their soundness, sustainability and foundation in the principles of solidarity, labor inclusion and non-discrimination in the world of work, as well as take steps towards universal social protection.

GUATEMALA: We will strengthen and introduce substantive changes in our social security and social protection systems to guarantee their soundness, sustainability and universality with foundation in the principles of solidarity, labor inclusion and non-discrimination in the world of work, ~~as well as take steps towards universal social protection.~~

MEXICO: In coordination with the competent institutions, ~~We~~ we will strengthen and introduce ~~substantive changes in~~ our social security and social protection systems to guarantee their soundness, sustainability, and foundation in the principles of solidarity, labor inclusion and non-discrimination in the world of work, as well as take steps towards universal social protection.

Comment : In Mexico, this action ("we will introduce substantive changes") is beyond the competence of the Ministry of Labor and Social Security. Therefore, in any case, the collaboration of other institutions would have to be involved, which is why the content proposal is made.

PANAMA: We will strengthen ~~and introduce substantive changes in~~ our social security and social protection systems to guarantee their soundness, sustainability and foundation in the principles of solidarity, ~~labor~~ social inclusion and non-discrimination in the world of work, ~~as well as~~ in order to take steps towards universal social protection.

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO: We will strengthen and introduce substantive changes in our social security and social protection systems to guarantee their soundness, sustainability and ensure that they are ~~foundation in~~ built on the principles of solidarity, labor inclusion and non-discrimination in the world of work, as well as take steps towards achieving universal social protection.

URUGUAY: We will strengthen ~~and introduce substantive changes in our~~ social security and social protection systems to guarantee their soundness, sustainability and foundation in the principles of solidarity, labor inclusion and non-discrimination in the world of work, as well as take steps towards universal social protection.

UNITED STATES: We will seek to strengthen ~~and introduce substantive changes in our social security and~~ social protection systems, ~~to guarantee their~~ financial solvency ~~soundness,~~ and sustainability, taking into account ~~and foundation in~~ the principles of solidarity, ~~labor~~ social inclusion, and non-discrimination ~~in the world of work~~, as well as ~~take~~ steps towards universal social protection³, including social protection floors.

CEATAL: We will strengthen and introduce substantive changes in our social security and social protection systems to guarantee their soundness, sustainability and foundation in the principles of solidarity, labor inclusion and non-discrimination in the world of work, as well as take steps towards ~~universal~~ adequate and sustainable social protection.

9. We express our commitment to promoting sustainable enterprises, recognizing their important contribution to economic growth, poverty reduction, sustainable development, social inclusion, decent employment and employment formalization.

CANADA: We express our commitment to promoting the health and growth of civil society organizations and sustainable enterprises, recognizing their important contribution to economic growth, poverty reduction, sustainable development, social inclusion, decent employment and employment formalization.

Comment: Canada suggests this addition to reflect the difference between: 1) promoting the health and growth of civil society organizations and social enterprises (that is, social purpose businesses) as inherent drivers of social, economic and sustainable development; and 2) encouraging traditional industry to adopt more sustainable businesses practices as part of their core businesses strategies and operations (e.g. through legislation, regulation, procurement power, partnerships etc.).

COSTA RICA: ~~We express our commitment to~~ We will redouble our efforts to promoting sustainable enterprises, recognizing their important contribution to economic growth, poverty reduction, sustainable development, social inclusion, decent employment and employment formalization.

ECUADOR: We express our commitment to productive recovery, promoting sustainable enterprises, recognizing their important contribution to economic growth, poverty reduction, sustainable development, social inclusion, decent employment and employment formalization.

HONDURAS: Comment: It is suggested to analyze the use of options such as: decent work; decent and productive employment.

MEXICO: We express our commitment to promoting sustainable enterprises, recognizing their important contribution to economic growth, poverty reduction, sustainable development, social inclusion, decent employment, and employment formalization. Similarly, we recognize the important role that workers' organizations play, and we will promote an inclusive social dialogue that guarantees economic development, with respect for labor rights and principles. *Comment: Mexico considers that it is also important to highlight the contribution of workers' organizations in the economic recovery. 14. We acknowledge that, given the acceleration of digital transformation prompted by the pandemic, in order to address the challenges posed by the future of work and create quality employment and decent work, it is imperative to continue improving the interaction and coordination between labor, education and training. In this regard, we celebrate the dialogue and cooperation that we have sustained since the XVIII IACML with the Ministries of Education within the framework of the OAS, and we will continue to promote articulation between our professional training and formal education systems through active public policies, placing special emphasis on technical and professional training; harmonization between training supply and labor demand; the development of digital, socio-emotional and cognitive skills relevant to changes in the world of work, taking into account the central role that new technologies play in this process; lifelong learning and reskilling; and the development of national and regional qualification frameworks and the promotion of entrepreneurship.

Comment on “digital and socio-emotional skills”: Canada would suggest the use of the terms “foundational and transferable skills” instead of categorizing skills as “socio-emotional and cognitive”, that is to denote a wide range of important skills, including adaptability and numeracy. The term “cognitive” skills can be problematic given that cognitive processes are required for the use of all skills, therefore all skills are cognitive.

Comment on “national and regional qualification framework”: In principle, Canada would support the development of regional and national qualification frameworks. However, there may be some issues for Canada with the development of such a framework given the division of powers between federal and provincial/territorial jurisdictions across Canada.

STRENGTHENING MINISTRIES OF LABOR TO ADDRESS EMERGING CHANGES IN THE WORLD OF WORK AND THE EFFECTS OF THE PANDEMIC

20. We recognize the central role that Ministries of Labor play to face the effects of the crisis and the challenges posed by the future of work. We will continue working to strengthen their institutional and human capacities, and we acknowledge that cooperation and exchange of knowledge and experiences are essential in this effort. For this reason, we will continue to strengthen and actively participate in the Inter-American Network for Labor Administration (RIAL), as the IACML's cooperation arm.

21. We reaffirm our commitment to continue improving the role of our Ministries in reviewing, formulating and adapting employment and labor public policies, as well as in ensuring enforcement and observance of labor laws and fundamental principles and rights at work. We also agree on the urgent need to strengthen labor inspection due to the increase in job precariousness levels caused by the pandemic and the new forms of work.

HONDURAS: We reaffirm our commitment to continue improving the role of our Ministries of Labor in reviewing, formulating and adapting employment and labor public policies, as well as in ensuring enforcement and observance of labor laws and fundamental principles and rights at work.

We also agree on the urgent need to strengthen labor inspection due to the increase in job precariousness levels caused by the pandemic and the new forms of work.

PERU: Comment: We recommend to evaluate that as a part of the strengthening process, the provision of better materials and infrastructure to the inspection system is considered, and above all, influence in the increase of trained labor inspectors, with the aim of addressing the levels of labor precariousness that the pandemic has sharpened even more; as well as to face the new challenges of labor inspection regarding new forms of work, such as telework and work from a distance, digital platforms, among others.

TRINIDAD AND TOBAGO: We reaffirm our commitment to continue improving the role of our Ministries in reviewing, formulating, ~~and~~ adapting, monitoring, and evaluating employment and labor public policies, as well as in ensuring enforcement and observance of labor laws and fundamental principles and rights at work. 22. We will encourage the development, design and implementation of legislation that addresses the new forms of work, such as work on digital platforms, telework, work from home, and alternating between the workplace and remote work with the participation of labor unions, employers and government, as well as promotion of regional cooperation in areas and issues related to the future of work.

BARBADOS: We will, with the participation of labor unions, employers and government, as well as through the promotion of regional cooperation in areas and issues related to the future of work, encourage the development, design and implementation of legislation that addresses the new forms of work, such as work on digital platforms, telework, work from home, and alternating between the workplace and remote work. ~~with the participation of labor unions, employers and~~

BRAZIL: We will encourage the development, design and implementation of regulation legislation that addresses the new forms of work, such as work on digital platforms, telework, work from home, and alternating between the workplace and remote work with the contribution of tripartite social dialogue ~~participation of labor unions, employers and government~~, as well as promotion of regional cooperation in areas and issues related to the future of work.

Comment: BRAZIL cannot agree with the tripartite mention in regards to implementation of legislation (in regards to which, by the way, we would prefer “regulation”, since not everything needs to be solved by legislation) since in our view social dialogue in a tripartite manner is valuable but consensus cannot always be reached and the ultimate responsibility of public policy is always with democratically elected governments. A similar comment has been made by us in the Plan of Action (Paragraph 9, b). We would suggest the following rephrasing: “22. We will encourage the development, design and implementation of regulation that addresses the new forms of work, such as work on digital platforms, telework, work from home, and alternating between the workplace and remote work with the contribution of tripartite social dialogue, as well as promotion of regional cooperation in areas and issues related to the future of work.”

COLOMBIA: We will encourage the development, design and implementation of legislation that addresses the challenges that represent the new forms of work, such as work on digital platforms, telework, work from home, and alternating between the workplace and remote work with the participation of labor unions, employers and government, as well as promotion of regional cooperation in areas and issues related to the future of work.

HONDURAS: We ~~will~~ encourage the development, design and implementation of legislation that addresses (change only applies to Spanish) the new forms of work, such as work on digital platforms, telework, work from home, and alternating between the workplace and remote work with the participation of workers’ and employers’ organizations ~~labor unions, employers and government~~, as well as promotion of regional cooperation in areas and issues related to the future of work.

Comment: It is suggested to analyze whether it seeks to highlight the classification of “organized,” for example: “workers 'and employers' organizations ...

MEXICO: We will encourage the development, design and instrumentation ~~implementation~~ of legislation that addresses the new forms of work, such as work on digital platforms, telework, work from home, and alternating between the workplace and remote work through social dialogue ~~with the participation of labor unions, employers, and government~~. Similarly, we will promote ~~as well as promotion~~ of regional cooperation in areas and issues related to the future of work.

Comment: This seems narrow and does not seem flexible to adjust to the evolving changes in the world of work. Also, in many instances measures will be developed/implemented by workers and/or employers.

CEATAL: We will encourage the development, design and implementation of legislation and/or policies and programs that addresses the (change applies to Spanish only) new forms of work, such as work on digital platforms, telework, work from home, and alternating between the workplace and remote work with the participation of labor unions, employers and government, as well as promotion of regional cooperation in areas and issues related to the future of work.

Comment: Canada would suggest adding "to protect workers' and employers' rights in light of" to ensure consistency with previous declarations.

SAINT VINCENT AND THE GRENADINES: Comment, "post COVID-19 crisis": Can the focus be extended to include natural disasters? The Caribbean islands are susceptible to natural disasters be it hurricanes, floods, and more recently volcanic eruptions. All these, like COVID-19 have adverse effects on economic activity of a country. St. Vincent and the Grenadines experienced a volcanic eruption on April 09, 2021 where over 16,000 persons were displaced, severe damage to agriculture, livelihood and infrastructure. The economy was already shaken from the effects of COVID-19 and it was further weakened by the eruption.

GENERAL COMMENTS RECEIVED THROUGH THE VIRTUAL FORUM

CANADA: In addition to the input provided in the attached documents, Canada would suggest giving more prominence to core labour rights in the Declaration and Plan of Action. These core rights have been impacted worldwide as a result of the pandemic. For instance, something along the following lines could be included in the Plan of Action, perhaps under the list of topics of WG2, or elsewhere:

- Protect the rights of workers and employers to join or form an organization of their choice and bargain collectively, for example by taking steps to ensure that their industrial relations systems are fair, efficient and transparent.
- Continue strengthening labor law enforcement by ensuring sanctions and fines imposed for labour rights violations are applied effectively and efficiently to guarantee their deterrent effect.
- Develop and implement strategies to guarantee workers the effective exercise of their labor rights, for example by improving access to justice, conducting prompt investigations into allegations of violations, etc.

The same comment would apply to the issue of forced labour, which is a key priority for Canada and a growing area of focus at the international level.

COMMENTS FROM COSATE:

We take note of the draft that has as its motto "BUILDING A MORE RESILIENT WORLD OF WORK WITH SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT, DIGNIFIED EMPLOYMENT AND SOCIAL INCLUSION." The COVID-19 pandemic has had a profound impact on humanity, it has highlighted the interdependence of members of society and the protective role of states that had to undertake reconstruction and rebuilding, in many cases of health systems weakened by permanent structural adjustments.

Not only does it have the consequence of tragic loss of human life, but it has impacted like a "Tsunami" with a sharp drop in economic activity. In the world of work, it has caused a dramatic rise of unemployment and huge income losses, increased informality and precariousness, with a greater impact on developing countries.

The consequences of unemployment and poverty have particularly harmed women and young people, migrants and other vulnerable sectors, exposing the inequality that exists in our societies. The shortcomings resulting from informality and job insecurity in many countries mean that there is no basic health, social and labor protection.

The new forms of remote work, the technological changes that imply new forms of work that are often deregulated, are effects of this crisis that are expected to continue after the end of the health pandemic and aggravate inequalities, injustice, poverty, security and, in short, regional and international peace.

As workers, it is striking to us that the preliminary draft submitted for consideration lacks proposals to deal with a global health, economic, and employment crisis of unusual magnitude. A crisis greater than that of 2008, with a strong impact on employment and income.

We expected a response from the Ministries of Labor in line with the emergency situation in the world of work. According to the ILO, "in 2020, 8.8 percent of global working hours were lost relative to the fourth quarter of 2019, equivalent to 255 million full-time jobs." The loss of working hours was particularly high in Latin America and the Caribbean, Southern Europe and South Asia. The loss of working hours in 2020 was approximately four times greater than during the 2009 global financial crisis.

In 2008, the International Labor Conference signed the "Global Jobs Pact", the Declaration of the G20 countries marked the importance of leaving "the times of irresponsibility", the Ministers of Labor in Buenos Aires affirmed the need to "Face the Crisis with Development, Decent Work and Social Protection". In the midst of an economic, health, social, environmental and employment crisis, are extraordinary measures to support the world of work for employment and decent work not deemed necessary?

Leaders of the region coincidentally express that we are facing "the worst pandemic in a century, the worst economic crisis since the Great Depression", and therefore, assist families and businesses to keep them open and their employees working. They argue that more needs to be done than just rebuilding and that is, rebuild better. Ensure greater equity and opportunity for women with equal pay. They also point out that the trickle-down economy has never worked, and it's time to grow the economy from below and from the center outwards. In the same sense, we highlight the proposal to release patents for COVID-19 vaccines and especially the recognition of trade unions as an efficient tool for the distribution of wealth and upward social mobility, which workers in the region take as our own.

Workers in the region call for proposals for urgent measures to maintain economic activity in particular measures to support SMEs, income security and solidarity to relaunch the real economy and decent working conditions for all workers -formal, self-employed, temporary-, and to reduce labor informality.

In addition, access to health care, paid sick leave and income support in times of crisis must be ensured for all workers, regardless of their mode of employment. Today, more than ever, social and labor protection is essential.

The profound inequalities observed particularly hit women working in essential occupations and sectors such as health and care. They have played an essential role in sustaining societies and economies during the pandemic, which is why we call for energetic measures to achieve gender equality.

Young people have suffered the impact of the pandemic, sacrificing their education, training and possibilities of transitioning from school to work, which is why we must consider programs and sustained efforts to achieve their effective integration into the world of work.

To these circumstances we must add that the world today faces a situation of health inequality such as access to healthcare and vaccines, which it does not seek to resolve through solidarity and cooperation to mitigate the effects of the pandemic.

The workers of the Americas grouped in the Trade Union Confederation of the Americas (TUCA / CSA) have adopted the Development Platform for the Americas (PLADA) as a response to the deep economic, social and political crisis that has shaken the world since 2008 and placed us in front of a major challenge: that the costs of overcoming the crisis are not burdened on the shoulders of the workers and the people. Today we endorse its content and insist that a successful solution must be based on:

- Inclusive growth must focus on the creation of decent and environmentally friendly work and putting inclusion and social cohesion at the centre of policies. Sustainable economic recovery programmes with job creation should focus on promoting investments for the creation of decent and environmentally friendly jobs that address a just transition. Programmes should also support and strengthen the processes of formalizing the informal economy in accordance with ILO's Recommendation 204. In short, to advance economic growth with social inclusion requires a new Social Contract in the Americas based on a more inclusive development system, enabling countries to truly develop their economies and ensure progressive tax systems that allow for a better distribution of wealth and a reduction in inequalities; a hierarchical and institutionalized social dialogue; labor protection and special emphasis on respect for fundamental rights, starting with freedom of association and collective bargaining; equality in relation to income, gender and race;
- The countries of the Americas must build an equitable and universal system of social protection. Reform initiatives must overcome the logic of privatization and create real and effective conditions for the coverage of the entire population, with special emphasis on the gender perspective to overcome gaps and inequalities in coverage. This includes tax reforms that can contribute to sustaining the systems, through the taxation of large fortunes, the taxation of the profits of transnational corporations and the fight against "tax dens", among others. Social protection systems should also contribute to formalizing the informal economy.
- Economic relations between developed countries and the countries of Latin America and the Caribbean should give priority to those that feed the "sustainable and inclusive economic recovery" of the region and not to those that only benefit the economic interests of developed countries to the detriment of national and regional development processes in Latin America. For a "sustainable and inclusive economic recovery", it is necessary to assess the impact of the current free trade agreements promoted in the region. Trade unionism in the region demands stronger mechanisms for respect for labor and environmental rights.

- Value chains must respect labor rights: decent work must be guaranteed for workers in Latin America and the Caribbean in global production chains, most of which are controlled by transnational corporations.
- Public policies of reconversion and environment must involve a just transition with social dialogue: in accordance with the Paris Agreement of the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change. The Latin American and Caribbean region continues to have the greatest potential on the planet in terms of its biodiversity and abundant commons. However, their communities and peoples have limited access to the benefits.
- The Economy 4.0. or Digitization of the world of work. A "people-centered" approach must ensure universal access and quality of technology. Technological transitions should guarantee workers' rights in the digital economy, including the right to freedom of association and collective bargaining, expand universal access to social protection, and promote the acquisition of skills and qualifications for all workers throughout their lives.
- Support for the defense and expansion of democracy in the continent: for the unions, the existence of democratic systems is essential where the exercise of civil and political rights is ensured and freedom of association and collective bargaining are guaranteed.

Here, we advance some ideas that should be incorporated to develop proposals for our peoples in the region and society:

- We must promote a broad-based and employment-intensive recovery, generate proposals for measures to maintain economic activity, in particular measures to support SMEs, income security and solidarity to relaunch the real economy and decent work conditions for all workers.
- Increase public and private investment in strategic sectors, infrastructure, in those sectors most affected by the crisis and in other sectors that have a strong potential to generate decent work opportunities;
- The pandemic has increased inequality in our country and the region, it is a matter of fundamental importance to generate a commitment to its reduction, recognizing the role of the State, but also of enterprises and labor unions.
- Our region must improve its productivity, but not at the cost of intensifying work and / or adjustments, but with a better distribution of income and continuous training of all factors of production.
- One of the priorities in our country and the region is the generation of innovative strategies to reduce economic and labor informality, a situation that is an obstacle to inclusive development. It is not a question of returning to rigid recipes. For those strategies to be successful they can only be thought within the framework of social dialogue.
- We must achieve commitments to ensure a social and health protection system that allows access to healthcare and income support in times of crisis for all workers, regardless of their employment modality, today more than ever social and labor protection is essential.

- Implement, through public policies and in business practices, a transformative program to achieve gender equality and the elimination of racial and ethnic discrimination, in particular with respect to migrants and indigenous peoples, and violence and harassment in the world of work;
- The pandemic has re-hierarchized the role of Health, Hygiene and Safety at work, it is essential to rethink a system that integrates tripartite efforts into the system through actions at the national, sectoral, and company level.
- The care-giving system is a social and labor issue that requires new responses. It is necessary to encourage the tasks of family co-responsibility without a doubt, but also to consider a system that integrates efforts at the level of the state, companies and social organizations.
- The profound inequalities observed particularly hit women who work in essential occupations and sectors such as healthcare and caregiving, and they have played an essential role in sustaining societies and economies during the pandemic, therefore we must agree on energetic measures to achieve gender equality.
- Young people have suffered the impact of the pandemic, jeopardizing their education, training and possibilities of going from school to work, which is why we must consider sustained programs and efforts to achieve their effective integration into the world of work.
- It is necessary to rebuild an educational system for continuous training that ensures the training of workers throughout their career path and that is related to and integrated into the formal educational system.
- Develop regulatory standards on work on virtual platforms considering the new forms of work that entail adapting work processes and modalities, such as telework, through dialogue and cooperation between management personnel and workers, ensuring access to adequate connectivity, equipment, technical support and training for all of them when working remotely.

In sum, we must address tripartite exchange by affirming the need to place the objective of full and productive employment and decent work at the center of public policies, promoting an economic recovery to achieve sustainable and inclusive development in accordance with the 2030 Agenda of the United Nations.

Support and strengthen the proactive role of the State in public policies that favor growth with employment and social inclusion, the strengthening of internal markets, as a provider of quality public services and ensuring compliance with international labor standards.

Specific commitments to establish the objective of full and productive employment and decent work, as well as the protection of workers, the needs of the most vulnerable groups and most affected by the pandemic, and support for companies, employment and income at the core of strategies to facilitate a people-centered recovery and build a better future.
