

Organization of American States

TRADE AND ENVIRONMENT 2015 LECTURER BIOS

RODRIGO MARTINEZ

Consultant at the Forest Carbon Partnership Facility (FCPF) of The World Bank

Rodrigo Martinez currently works as a consultant at the Forest Carbon Partnership Facility of The World Bank. Previously he worked as a Climate Specialist at the Inter-American Development Bank. He has also worked for the Department of Sustainable Development at the Organization of American States from 2007 until 2012. He holds an Undergraduate degree of Business Administration from Universidad Javeriana in Bogotá, Colombia, a a Master in Natural Resource Economics from the University of Queensland, Australia, and currently undertaking an MBA at Johns Hopkins University. He has 15 years of experience working on environmental policy, market based instruments, and poverty reduction projects in Latin America and the Caribbean. He has consulted with WWF, UNDP, and Ramsar among other organizations, and has expertise on topics including Payments for Ecosystem Services, climate change adaptation, water resource management, biodiversity conservation, REDD+, environmental policy, environmental economics, international trade negotiations, trade of natural products, and trade and environment. Prior to coming to the US in 2006 he coordinated the National Biotrade Watch of Colombia within the Alexander von Humboldt Institute where he developed the Markets Information System and designed the Technology Transfer System of Biotrade for Colombia. He speaks fluent English and Spanish and has working knowledge of Portuguese.