- St. Kitts & Nevis Assembly Debates Anti-Terrorism Act Amendments

The St. Kitts & Nevis National Assembly will debate, by the end of September, amendments to its Anti-Terrorism Act of 2002. Among the proposed reforms, the new bill replaces the concept of 'terrorist activity' with 'terrorist act'. Thus, any act that involves serious damages to a person or property; that jeopardizes a person life; that creates a risk to the health or safety of the public; that involves the use of firearms or explosives; and that involves the release of toxic or dangerous substances to the environment, will be considered a terrorist act.

Another amendment refers to the freezing of funds by a court, in case a person is charged with an offence under the Act.

- FBI Provides World Cup Cricket Help

'The Caribbean could become a target for terrorist acts during the World Cup Cricket Championship' acknowledged Jamaica's National Security Minister, Dr. Meter Phillips. Dr. Phillips spoke at the Wyndham Rose Hall Hotel, where the Organization of American States held its second counter-terrorism simulation exercise from September 8th to 9th. In preparation for the World Cup Cricket, the Inter-American Committee against Terrorism of the OAS (CICTE) had also organized a one week Hostage Negotiation training course at the same hotel from August 29th to September 2nd 2005.

In March 2007, the Caribbean countries expect to receive more than 100,000 tourists from all over the world, many of whom come from countries in conflict, such as Pakistan or Sri Lanka. In many countries there are conflicts related to terrorism and thus, "there is always the potential that we in the Caribbean could become the stage on which other conflicts get acted out", Phillips said.

The Minister remarked that Jamaica has already taken important steps to improve its border control, to increase intelligence-gathering capacities with the CARICOM countries, and to provide training to law enforcement officials.
