CONCLUSIONS

The Bahamas has made progress in the implementation of several of the CICAD recommendations. Among them, the National Anti-Drug Plan (July 2003 – June 2008) and its corresponding implementation budget has been approved; drug prevention programs in schools are being evaluated for efficacy; and it has created a national registry on imports, exports and transit of firearms and ammunition.

In addition, it has initiated the process to establish a National Drugs Observatory (NDO) expected to be completed in 2004; with the assigned financial resources, it expects to complete a prevalence of drug use survey among the general population for 2005 and to establish minimum standards of care for the treatment of persons affected by drug abuse.

The Bahamas has also drafted the Precursors and Chemicals Bill 2003, which is pending approval.

However, no progress has been made in the ratification of important international conventions, such as the Inter-American Convention on Mutual Assistance in Criminal Matters, assigned to the country since the First Evaluation Round 1999 – 2000, and the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and its three Protocols.

CICAD recognizes the progress made by The Bahamas and encourages the country to continue with its effort for the full implementation of outstanding recommendations.
