

Renewable and Transition Energies

Name of Initiative:	Energy and Climate Investment Network
Duration:	2021 to 2026
Current participating Countries:	Hemispheric (34 countries including U.S. and Canada)
Objective:	To increase the impact and effectiveness of energy transition programs through improved coordination and information exchange among governments, multilateral development banks, regional institutions, and private partners.
Activities:	Provide access to knowledge on energy sector issues and opportunities; support governments in the preparation of energy security strategies and road maps; promote greater cooperation for regional energy solutions; coordinate and align donor support strategies in the energy sector; promote greater private sector participation; facilitate access to funding resources from public, private, and multilateral sources.
Cost and Funding:	USD $4.5 million. ($1.3 million secured)
Request from Partners:	<ul style="list-style-type: none">- Funding- Technical, financial and policy tools- Public-private Partnerships- Horizontal and Triangular Cooperation- Knowledge and Best Practice Sharing

Sub-themes

- Climate change
- Adaptation
- Resilience
- Mitigation
- Technology

Beneficiaries

Energy users

Business entrepreneurs

Governments

Expected Results

Establishment of a multi-partner coordination mechanism that supports effectual energy planning, development, and management in the Americas.

Partners

IDB

CDB

World Bank

U.S. Department of State

Point of contact for additional information:
Juan Cruz Monticelli, SEDI
/DSD, jmonticelli@oas.org

OAS | More rights
for more people